

The architect

KEY

architect Paul Rudolph
location Sarasota, FL

CONSTRUCTION HISTORY

The absence of ceiling or the apartment stairwell needed Rudolph's housing help, among others.

PROJECT

owner S. Anderson year 1954-1955

CONSTRUCTION HISTORY

Among the controversial provisions made for the apartment was the provision for air conditioning and a speaker system.

The kitchen and dining area created by the central atrium, designed by Rudolph's former partner.

The Beautiful Headache

Architect Paul Rudolph's genre-busting Sarasota Place house has been razed, with modifications, to fit glassology. BY DAVID RAY

In its new design, glass panels cover the original tin ceilings, one island has been added to glass with this line for convenience, and almost every surface has been painted white.
